

Adani Foundation - spreading smiles everywhere

When a mega-corporation leads from the front, it also shoulders the responsibility of being a holistic caretaker of the environment it works within; its stakeholders that include employees and their families; and indeed the entire populace surrounding their geographic spread.

Take the Adani Group. With a revenue of almost USD 6 billion for financial year 2011. Largest private player across three core sectors of India – resources, logistics and energy. The world's largest coal trader and India's largest mine developer. Set to handle 200 MMT of cargo from its Ports. And generate 20000 MW of power – all by the turn of this decade. With Adani Enterprises as the holding Company, Adani Ports & SEZ And Adani Power, our collective vision for growth envisages a four to 10 fold rise in activities over the next decade. All of which reinforces the group's continuing commitment of setting aside 1% of its profits in community initiatives through the Adani Foundation, established in 1996.

The Adani Foundation operates on the Gandhian Concept of Trusteeship. Through social, environmental and financial successes – the Triple Bottom-line with an ultimate goal of bringing about a positive impact in the overall society with immediate focus on its surrounding communities and thousands of villagers as part and parcel of the huge Adani family.

The three group companies under the Adani fold have been investing in community initiatives through the Foundation. The Foundation, a registered entity, has been focusing on key areas for socio-economic development for needy and underprivileged sectors of society.
